And finally:- During the course of the last week we, as the English Catholic Church, celebrated the Feast of Ss. John Fisher & Thomas More. This celebration reminds us of the great history of the Church in these lands, and the witness of so many faithful men and women down through the ages who dedicated their lives to the service of Christ and His Church. From the early beginnings of Christianity on these shores, from the saints of Lindisfarne, St. Augustine of Canterbury, St. Thomas Becket, and the Martyr saints of the English Reformation, faithful Christians have played their part in spreading the Gospel and defending the truth. With so great a cloud of witness, many of them ordinary people like you and me, we are strengthened and inspired in our faith by the example of their lives. Like them we, today, are called to play our part in the proclamation of the gospel "in season and out of season", to defend the Christian faith which has for centuries been the bedrock upon which our nation was established – to be "God's good servants" in our time.

May God bless you all, Fr. Craig
